

I am strongly opposed to any laws that further deregulate the media. I feel that, with the current size of some corporations, competition among the smaller companies would suffer considerably. In turn, this could severely limit access by citizens to differing opinions or points of view in the media, be it news or entertainment.